OLDEST GUEST—Mrs. Della Earnhardt, 82, was the oldest guest making the tour of Pineville Plant during the recent open house. Mrs. Earnhardt worked at Pineville many years ago when the plant was known as the Dover Spinning Company.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND — Danny Delancey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Delancey, 1107 Vine Street, seems to be in doubt whether "Brownie" is man's best friend. "Brownie" seems to take more to Danny's brother, Steve. Danny and Steve's father is a loomfixer in the Weave Room at Proximity Plant. Their mother is employed in the same department. "Brownie" belongs to Dan Hornaday.

Costner, instructor; Robert I. Pegram, instructor; Mr. Murray. Back row, Diamond Davis, Garland Mays, Wallace Bourne, Cletus Andrews, C. C. Henson, Claude Owen, Fred Marshall, Barnie M. Stoneman and C. E. Hilliard.

Mrs. Farthing Speaks To Matron's Club

Mrs. Mary Farthing, health educator with the Greensboro Tuberculosis and Heart Association, was guest speaker for the last meeting of the summer for the Matron's Club, at White Oak Y on Wednesday, May 20.

Mrs. Farthing gave many suggestions on how a homemaker can save "wear and tear" on her heart by having a "plan," and using thought in going about her daily routine tasks.

She also showed a film, "The Heart of the Home," giving details of a labor-saving kitchen, cabinets and equipment arranged to save steps, stooping and reaching.

Mrs. Farthing was assisted in the program by Miss Betty Lou Alden, a student at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, who is doing field work with the local health department.

The Matron's Club will resume their monthly meetings in September.

Camping Is Popular With Cone Employees

Family Camping is a relatively new camping program in this section of the country, but it is growing by leaps and bounds at Camp Herman.

Family Camping at Camp Herman started in 1947 and has grown every year. Each year the staff tries to profit from the mistakes of the preceding year and this year plans are being made to make this the best season.

The reservations that are already in indicate that more interest is now being shown than ever before and the staff feels a vacation is offered at a price every family can afford.

This same kind of vacation in other resorts would cost many times more than the fee that is charged at Camp Herman.

The fact that families come to camp from as far away as New York shows that family camping is very popular. Family camping has replaced trips to the shore and mountains and many families would spend the complete summer at Camp Herman if space was available.

Now is the time to get your reservation in for the period that you would like to stay!

This will be the last meeting until September.

Funeral Held For Richard P. M. Eagles

Funeral services were held last Tuesday at 8:00 p.m. for Richard P.M. Eagles, 80, who died Sunday morning at his home in East Orange, N. J. Private interment was held Wednesday morning.

Mr. Eagles started his textile career well over 50 years ago. He was associated with Catlin and Company, J. Spencer Turner Company and in 1914 became associated with Myron C. Taylor and J. D. Armitage in the firm of Taylor, Armitage and Eagles which handled industrial textiles.

He joined Minot, Hooper and Company on September 1, 1926, as merchandiser of the Industrial Textile Division of the Dwight Mill, Gadsden, Ala., and became a partner in that firm on April 4, 1938. When the Dwight Manufacturing Company was merged with Cone Mills Corporation in September, 1951, Mr. Eagles joined Cone Mills Inc. as merchandise manager of the Dwight Division..

Mr. Eagles was a member of the Merchants Club of the Arkwright Club of New York, having been a director of the Arkwright from 1941 to 1943.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace E. Eagles, and four daughters, Mrs. Charles H. Engler, Mrs. E. Winter Eastman, Mrs. Carl O. Siebke and Mrs. Herbert Koepp.

During the business meeting each officer was given a book and the duties of each was discussed. Mrs. Amos gave the closing prayer.

Those present were: Mesdames L. C. Amos, Millard Leonard, G. E. White, R. C. Honeycutt, Ray Tugman, Frank Starling, Hazel Owens, Worth Murray, Jim Nance and John Paschel.

Rev. Mosser Speaks To Ministerial Ass'n.

The Textile Ministerial Association brought their year's work to a close Wednesday with a luncheon at the Proximity Branch of the Cone Memorial YMCA with Rev. Mack Welch, pastor of Palm Street Christian Church, presiding.

The association heard for their meeting of the year the Rev. Cameron D. L. Mosser, minister of Westminister Presbyterian Church of South Greensboro. Rev. Mosser has a wide range of experience in various fields of work, linked with his seminary training in New York City, and four years of service in the chaplaincy of the armed forces in North Africa and Italy, together with a keen insight into spiritual values on the practical level which enable the local clergyman to live and work with his church in a most successful and fruitful ministery.

The speaker dealt with the expository and the topical type sermon building to the local church congregation and the advantages and disadvantages in the use and development of sermons best suited for our day and generation; reference was made to such outstanding leaders in the field of the ministery as Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, London, England, and Dr. Norman V. Peale; how they kept close with and to the Bible and a scriptural text as a foundation or background for their sermons. It was further pointed out that good preaching never left the waiting congregation in the air in their thinking, but rather tied the message up with some practical living experience that placed their feet upon solid ground in life.

Rev. C. W. Adkinson, pastor of Sixteenth Street Baptist Church, introduced his guest, Rev. Lewis E. Ludlum, Baptist missionary in the Winston-Salem district for the Baptist denomination. Rev. Ludlum is currently conducting a series of meetings at Sixteenth Street Church.

H. M. Angel Speaks To Community Club

Proximity-Print Works Community Club met last Tuesday night in the Proximity club room and had as guest speaker, H. M. Angel, general secretary of Cone Memorial YMCA's. Mrs. John Scott presided.

Mr. Angel's subject was, "Try To Live Your Religion For A Day."

The speaker told of a young lady who had tried to live her religion for one day. She was so impressed after one day that she decided to try it for many more. Soon, however, she felt that her world had gone to pieces.

After thinking it over, she knew her living had been only "wishful-thinking," and then she adopted a more realistic and positive philsophy of living such as: "I can and I will." With this type of resolution she regained her spiritual balance so essential to any life in business, home, church or community.

During the business meeting it was decided to wait until Fall before making the drapes that are going to be used in the club room.

Explorer Post 29 Has Father-Son Banquet

Approximately 40 fathers and sons attended a banquet held at Camp Herman on Sunday, May 24. This group represented fathers and sons of Explorer Post No. 29 and Troop 29.

Mr. A. W. Harris, Jr., who has been active in scouting for 35 years, presented service stars to Jimmy Jordan, Brantly Edwards, Donald Payne, Fred Gurkins, Donald Everhart and James Canter.

Mr. Harris urged the adults present to give "part of their time and knowledge to these boys because they are the future citizens of our country.

"Within a few short years they will be away in schools and the armed forces under different influences, but while they are under our influence, our help means much to them," he declared.

After the banquet, Brantly Edwards, senior crew leader, introduced a skit put on by five members of the post. Those taking part were Donald Payne, Jimmy Jordan, Andrew Smith, Roy Southern and Jerry Cox.

Songs were led by Andrew Smith and Brantly Edwards.

Cone Employees Get First Aid Certificates

Thirteen Cone employees completed the first aid and safety courses which were organized this spring under the supervision of the Training Department. Almost perfect attendance was attained by this group which completed the training.

First aid training is valuable to every citizen for his own good, the good of his family, and as an aid to his fellow worker or teammate. It is a must for civilian defense and for waterfront workers; in fact, every vacationer should have a knowledge of first aid.

Those who completed the recent courses are: Barnie M. Stoneman, C. C. Henson, Cletus D. Andrews, Claude T. Owen, Frederick W. Marshall, C. E. Hilliard, North E. Trollinger, Diamond Davis, Garland D. Mays, H. E. Wright, C. R. Shepherd, Charles H. Hayes and Joseph Moore. Instructors were Vernon Watson, Charles Myers, Robert I. Pegram and J. A. Costner.

The evening class held its final meeting at Martel's Barbecue last Thursday evening, May 21. Garland Murray, safety services supervisor for the Greensboro chapter of the Red Cross, presented certificates and gave a talk on civil defense first aid.

The morning class held its final meeting in the Revolution conference room on Tuesday when Mr. Murray gave a similar talk and presented certificates. Refreshments were served at this meeting.

Funeral Today For George H. Fisher

Masonic funeral service was held at 2:30 p.m. today at the Universal Funeral Parlor, 52nd Street and Lexington Avenue in New York City, for George H. Fisher, 55, who was a member of Cone Mills Inc.'s sales staff in the New York office.

Mr. Fisher, who was a widely-known figure in the textile field for many years, passed away early yesterday morning at Flower-Fifth Avenue Hospital in New York. He had never fully recovered from a serious operation in January of this year.

Mr. Fisher, who had been associated with Cone Mills Inc. in sales since 1924, was made manager of Cone's Chicago office in 1936 and in August, 1952, was transferred to the New York office.

He was active in the Chicago Trade Associations for 17 years. Among the offices he held in these associations were president and secretary of the Chicago Textile Club, director of the Fabric Salesmen's Club of Chicago, president of the Textile Merchants and Associated Industries of Chicago, a position he retired from when he was transferred to New York in August, 1952.

Mr. Fisher was also a past master of the Birchwood Lodge 1012 of the Free and Accepted Masons of Chicago and a member of the American Legion. He was a sergeant in World War I with the 5th Artillery Division.

He is survived by his widow, Florence; his mother, Mrs. Lucy Fisher; a son, William H. Fisher of Washington, D. C., and a sister, Mrs. Dorothy Flato of Hewlett, L. I.

Cone Fabrics Facts

CONE PLAY DENIM
The Family's Fun Fabric

PLAY DENIM: Basic twill weave with white or colored filling, in a wide range of colors and patterns, with a special drapey finish.

(The following is one of a series of write-ups on Cone fabrics which appears in the brochure recently published by Cone Mills Inc., New York.)

Here we have one of the major contributions of the cotton-textile industry to the gaiety and versatility of the American family's wardrobe. Inspired styling and a drapey finish, added to the practical denim virtues, are the cause of it all.

Cone Play Denim's colors are the fashion editors' favorites. They range from "sun-drenched" summer shades to specially "seasoned" fall and winter tones. Patterns include stripes, checks, plaids in profusion. Complementary colors are coordinated with complementary patterns.

You'll find Cone Play Denims in women's sportswear everywhere . . . also in casual suits, town dresses. In men's jackets, slacks, beachwear. In children's clothes right across the board.

But that's not all. Denim has become a year-round fabric, with the introduction of Cone Fall-Time Denim in suiting patterns and colors for winter wear. There's also a warmer weight, with a soft, flannelly back, called Cone Ski-Time Denim.

And keep your eye on Cone Denim drapes and spreads for ranch type and other casual rooms. They're the decorator's delight.

What They Really Expected

It is recognized by this publication that the President of the United States should, as the title implies, be President of the entire nation. Over a long period we do not feel that any particular group or section would greatly benefit if the President should unwisely use his administration solely to please any particular group or section. The general welfare and the preservation of American principles should be his continuous objective.

It is, however, difficult to understand why such organizations as "Americans For Democratic Action" should feel that the President would be inclined to follow its dictates or pay too much attention to its vocal expressions. The record definitely shows that "Americans For Democratic Action" did everything it could to defeat General Eisenhower when he was a candidate. It is a further recognized fact that the left wing principles of the ADA were to a large extent repudiated during the last election. That organization even tried to dominate the Democratic Convention without success. Yet, we have noted with a great deal of surprise that the ADA during its recent convention took the President to task purely because his administration has not acted in accordance with the wishes and desires of the ADA.

The above is likewise true of other organizations in this country which fought the present administration tooth and nail.

We do not for one minute advocate depriving any group of citizens of the right to voice displeasure or opposition to this or any other administration, but we do feel that it is a little funny for such organizations as the ADA to assume that the President and his administration would follow a program dictated by it.

In fact, if the President and the administration were to chart their course along the routes prescribed by the ADA, or any of its kindred organizations, the people in this country would have a logical right to rise up and protest.

It should have been recognized by the ADA that the people of this nation were beginning to worry about our rapid movement to the left. After the election it was to be expected that the trend would be to some extent reversed. Therefore, we cannot help but wonder what the ADA and other left wing organizations really expected.

Pythian Echoes

by R. Cole Lee

The winner at the elimination "Speaking Contest" sponsored by the Grand Lodge of the state was none other than Barbara Massey of the Greensboro Senior High School. Barbara will now be a contestant in the finals at Lakeland, Florida. Before going to Florida, however, she will speak before the Grand Lodge in Raleigh on June 9. Barbara will also appear on the local television station in the very near future.

In the "Essay Contest" our own Alice Mahaffey of the Pythian Home at Clayton was the winner. This essay was judged by the faculty of St. Mary's College from hundreds as being the best in material content and diction: Alice received a check from the state organization for $25.00 and will now enter the national contest where we hope she will be the recipient of the larger award.

Let us not overlook the fact that every one of the contestants last Friday at the YWCA received a cash award for their efforts.

Glad to report that Pythian Jim Frazier has returned to his home, 2510 Vine Street.

Application was received from Arthur Bailiff for membership. Arthur is the nephew of the well-known Pythian Jess Wheeler, and should he prove anything like his uncle, we can rest assured that he will make a very good member.

Arthur, we welcome you and trust your journey through the ranks of mystery will prove instructive and beneficial to you.

Since the report of last week through this column an additional $10.00 has been given toward the furance replacement of the Pythian Home. This makes a total of $314.50 to date.

The Lodge will participate in the National Decoration Day program Sunday, May 31, at 4:30 p.m. in the Forest Lawn Cemetery at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial by joining with the other local civic and fraternal organizations by placing a floral tribute on the grave. Pythians T. G. Watkins and myself were asked to represent the membership.

In conjunction with the National Safety Drive soon to be launched, Pythians V. O. Watson, Millard Leonard and W. B. Burke were appointed as a committee to work with the State Committee. Final plans and arrangements for such a drive will be forthcoming after the Grand Lodge Convention on June 9.

From the serious to the ridiculous here is a laugh: "A woman of mammoth proportions was in an automobile accident. She was taken to the hospital, where she soon regained consciousness. The doctor, seeking to comfort her a bit, said: "You undoubtedly will be able to obtain a considerable amount of damages, Mrs. Johnson." "Damages!" said Mrs. Johnson. "What I want with damages? I got enough damages now. What I want is repairs."

The above campaign is being launched by our Supreme Chancellor, Shelton M. Ropier of Lincolnton, and it is earnestly desired that when the time comes that every local Pythian will join wholeheartedly in the drive to prevent accidents resulting in injury and death. The State Highway Commission has already concurred with the idea and have promised their unlimited support. What say ye fellows, let every Pythian be recognized for his "courtesy" in driving.

LISTEN AMERICANS!

...by George S. Benson
President of Harding College

WASHINGTON—"The prosperity of every American, whatever his station in life, depends on American business and industry producing more wealth through production of more of the good and services of everyday living," Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks said to me. "Thus," he said, "our prime objective at the Commerce Department is to help business to do this better job of production and distribution through the improvements of our various services."

The questions I put to Secretary Weeks in an interview were designed to bring out his rounded opinion on the nation's economic future—the bread and butter future of all of us. I respect his opinion both as former head of one of America's substantial industries and as the Secretary of Commerce. Though new on the job, he has recently had access to the many business barometers constantly being compiled by the department. "Put your faith in the American business system," he said. "This magnificent American industrial machine — financed by those who have saved, managed by experts in administration and production, and operated by labor—can do the job in war or peace, if wise government gives encouragement in every possible way.

"Some transitions will occur as, at a later date, defense expenditures taper off and industry is diverted to normal production. But plant and equipment expenditures are today advancing, despite the fact that some defense-supporting programs already have reached their peak. And limitless frontiers are opening in research laboratories which lead to all sorts of new things, new processes and new worlds of progress.

"The Commerce Department and the public as a whole," Secretary Weeks made it clear, "expect business to assume statesman-like responsibilities in its new freedom from government backseat driving. This requires good management-labor relations, self-discipline and the daring venture spirit. It means also . . . an appreciation of the fact that world trade is a two-way street.

"Businessmen who talk about economy in principle and then act through their lobbies for special benefits, are often to blame for a share of the high cost of government. They must practice what they preach when it comes to special legislation. Assuming their share of responsibilities, and setting an example in self-reliance and enterprise, businessmen can make our nation much more prosperous. Workers will benefit as will all the consuming public."

Secretary of Commerce Weeks is supremely confident that business will meet the challenge.

DOGS by Tom Farley

Summer Care

"Dog days," according to Webster, comprise a four-to-six week period of sultry, close weather between early July and early September. It's the time of year when we all slow our pace a bit, avoid over exertion, and usually knock off for a week or so of fishing or siestas under a beach umbrella.

The precautions we take ourselves during this stretch of muggy heat should apply to our dogs as well. In summer, dogs instinctively follow a course of less activity. They seem to gravitate naturally to the coolest sleeping spots—under a chair or bed, near an open doorway, or beneath a shady tree.

Just as you'd choose the morning or late afternoon for a game of tennis, to avoid the midday heat, so you should arrange your dog's exercise periods at hours when he won't be exposed to the broiling sun. Don't be deceived by his apparently boundless energy, particularly if he is one of the rough-and-tumble terrier breeds. Plan the exercise to satisfy his need for action, and yet not tire him.

His summer bedding should be as light and cool as possible. If he sleeps in a dog bed, you might substitute paper, that excellent insulating agent, for his usual mat.

If your dog lives outside in a doghouse, the same rays of sunlight that ordinarily keep it dry and cool in milder weather will make it untenable during the midday hours. Make sure, if he's on a chain or in a run, that he has a shady spot to rest until his house cools off in the late afternoon.

An abundance of clean, cool water is a necessity for dogs during the summer. Aside from satisfying his increased thirst, the water—which contains iodine—cleanses and purifies a dog's system. See that he gets at least three daily changes of water.

You won't have to serve your dog water with meals if you feed him a food that contains sufficient moisture. In fact, some canine authorities feel that too much water after meals weakens the action of the dog's gastric juices and will, in time, impair his digestive process.

If you feed your dog a dry commercial type food, be sure that it is well soaked to replace the vital natural juices which dehydration takes away. However, if his diet consists of first grade canned food, you have no problem, since these foods contain about the same amount of moisture as fresh raw steak, a moisture content approved by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for a maintenance food for healthy dogs.

With this little extra attention, your pet will have nothing to fear from the dog days of summer.

Boys' Gra-Y Clubs Tour Local Dairy

Approximately 65 boys from the Proximity School Gray-Y Clubs enjoyed a trip through Guilford Dairy last week. The boys saw how the milk was brought in from the farms, tested and pasteurized. They also saw how cottage cheese and ice cream were made, how the bottles were washed and how the trucks were loaded.

One outstanding fact that was pointed out to the group was that the dairy had to replace 20,000 bottles a month.

John Moser, a bacteriologist of the dairy, supervised the tour. Wayne Cates and Dale Roberts made the tour with the clubs.

Big Game Set For Central Field Tonight

The Revolution team, headed by "T" Ward, will have such men played as Will Marshburn, Ogburn Blake, Ventry Hinshaw, Tommy Ward, Tom Lauderdale, Wally Bourne, Junior Weaver, Aaron Pinkelton, Howard Pickard, and Fred Ziprik.

Lester Wolfe, Clerk of Superior Court, Mayor C. H. McCoy of Pineville and Sheriff Clyde Hunter were a few of the distinguished guests. All of the children over 14 came from the Pineville School.

The honor of being the oldest guest went to Mrs. Della Earnhardt, who is 82 years old. She worked at the Pineville Plant about 58 years ago when it was known as Dover Spinning Company. So many changes had been made since she had worked in a mill that she said she could hardly believe she was in a mill. In one department, she wanted to know, "How did they ever get all this machinery in here," and "how do they manage it so well?" Her son and daughter explained that everyone had his own job to do and that by working with others and cooperating, the work was done. Her son, Ben Earnhardt, who works in the Cloth Room, escorted her through the plant.

Probably the one thing receiving the most comments was the condition of the floors in the Pineville Plant. Everyone wanted to know how the floors were finished to present such a good appearance and still not be slick. But all the departments received favorable comments and visitors seemed to enjoy the tour.
